Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from On Old Rancho San Pascual: The Story of South Pasadena Aster Sunday, 1917, found America in the Great War. There was a solemnity to the day such as no Easter had known since Lincoln's time. Southern California felt it along with the rest of the nation. President Wilson had signed the declaration of war but two days before. Night wires announcing the fact had been flashed to every army and national guard commander in the country. Colonel Charles F. Hutchins, Commander of the old Seventh California, had received the message at three a.m. At his South Pasadena home and had without loss of a minute communicated with his captains all over Southern California. By Easter he had mobilized his men. By Easter South Pasadena had opened a Red Cross room with over one hundred active women workers. Two days after Easter a company of home guards with 107 members had been organized. The Sunday after Easter found the countryside blessed with a bounteous rain which soon brought South Pasadena's 500 war gardens smiling through the damp earth....
